Overview

Rosemary Ayers represents developers, investors and lenders in the development, acquisition, financing and sale of commercial real estate projects throughout New England and the United States. She has substantial experience structuring complex real estate joint ventures for pension funds and representing fund advisors in the acquisition, financing, asset management and disposition of fund investments. Rosemary also guides large development and redevelopment projects and public-private partnerships from concept to reality.

Rosemary counsels developers and lenders of privately funded and government-subsidized multi-family housing projects in all aspects of acquisition, development and management. She has worked on numerous residential and commercial condominiums and other forms of common interest communities.

Rosemary's practice also involves advising lenders on the foreclosure, conveyance in lieu of foreclosure and restructuring of distressed real estate projects, including multi-family, office, mixed-use and common interest community projects.
