Overview

Joseph Scully, an experienced litigator, primarily represents insurance companies in insurance coverage actions and reinsurance disputes. He has litigated coverage disputes in state and federal courts, including disputes arising from asbestos and other product liability claims, environmental losses, fire and other property damage, construction defects, and equipment breakdown claims. Joseph also has handled and tried disputes involving reinsurance claims before arbitration panels and in state and federal courts.

Joseph has tried complex civil disputes in courts throughout New England, as well as Delaware, Maryland, New York, Ohio and Texas. Clients seek out his experience taking matters to trial in state and federal courts and litigating numerous arbitrations through final hearings. He is also sought out for his handling of appeals before courts, including the First Circuit Court of Appeals and state appellate courts in Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York and Rhode Island.

Joseph has authored numerous articles and presented at industry conferences on a variety of cutting-edge insurance and reinsurance topics. He serves on the Board of the Greater Hartford Legal Aid Foundation and devotes significant pro bono hours working with the Connecticut Fair Housing Center.

Before entering private practice, Joseph served as a law clerk to The Honorable Edward F. Harrington, U.S. District Court for the District of Massachusetts.
