Day Pitney Appoints Chief AI and Innovation Officer

New C-suite position underscores firm's commitment to innovation that benefits attorneys and clients.

Day Pitney LLP announced today that it has appointed Larry Chan as the firm's Chief AI and Innovation Officer, a newly created role that will provide focused leadership of the firm's AI strategy. Chan has held senior innovation and data-oversight roles at two Am Law 200 law firms. The appointment makes Day Pitney one of a small group of firms its size to establish this executive role and marks an important milestone in its efforts to adopt AI and innovation in ways that deliver meaningful value for clients and the firm.

Chan will lead the firm's innovation efforts, connecting his work closely to the practical needs of Day Pitney's clients, firm attorneys, and professional staff. Through this collaboration, he will evaluate and implement technologies that strengthen attorney capabilities and translate AI's potential into meaningful value for clients. Chan will be based in the firm's New York office.

“Larry's appointment places Day Pitney among a small group of Am Law peer firms investing in dedicated AI leadership,” said Day Pitney's Managing Partner Michael P. Byrne. “With Larry's leadership, we are building the foundation to continue our strategic advancements in adopting AI tools that improve our work and allow attorneys and professional staff to focus on the strategic issues that matter most to clients.”

Chan joins from Loeb & Loeb LLP, where he served as the Director of Innovation & Emerging Technology. He brings more than 20 years of experience leading innovative functions and excels in the creation of AI-driven workflows. In this position, Chan will evaluate AI tools, develop training programs, and establish standards for their use. Together with the firm's leadership, he will also guide AI adoption with an emphasis on client confidentiality, information security, accuracy, and professional responsibility.

“This role differentiates Day Pitney, and Larry's leadership in this important space will meaningfully improve the experience of both our attorneys and clients,” said Day Pitney COO Chip Krauss. “Larry is a proven innovator who keeps a rigorous focus on the practical benefits of technology.”

“Successful innovation strategies start with understanding the needs of the professionals they serve,” said Chan. “Day Pitney has made a clear commitment to innovation, and I look forward to working with colleagues across the firm to make a real impact on our work.”

Chan earned his B.AS. in computer science from Binghamton University.
